IN MEMORIAM

Hiram J. Friedsam, Ph.D., Dean and Professor Emeritus at the University of North Texas

Dr. Hiram Johnson Friedsam, a resident of Denton, Texas, died from complications of pancreatic cancer in San Antonio, Texas in the early morning of March 24th with his family at his bedside. He was 87 years of age. Born March 14, 1920 in Brooklyn, New York, Dr. Friedsam grew up in Waco, Texas. He received his bachelor's degree from Baylor University and master's degree from the University of Texas prior to WWII. During the war he served in the Pacific as a First Lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps, participating in the Battle of Solomon Islands and at Guadalcanal Island from 1942 to 1943. He remained in the Marine Corps Reserves and retired as a Major in 1961.

Hiram met his wife, Reva, in New York City shortly after WWII. They were married on June 25, 1947, in Austin, Texas, where he had returned to complete a doctorate at the University of Texas. He joined the faculty of North Texas State Teachers College (now the University of North Texas) in 1948 at the invitation of President A.J. McConnell as an assistant professor of economics. He later became the chairman of the then Department of Economics and Sociology. Dr. Friedsam was instrumental in establishing the Center for Studies in Aging at North Texas, the first gerontology program in Texas and one of the first in the nation. In 1973, after serving as director of the Center, Dr. Friedsam was appointed as the first Dean of the newly established School of Community Service (now the College of Public Affairs and Community Service), a position that he held until his retirement in 1983. Serving as Dean and Professor Emeritus, he maintained an office in the Department of Applied Gerontology (formerly the Center for Studies in Aging), where he continued to write and edit professional publications, serve on local and national advisory boards, and mentor students and faculty up until his death.

Dr. Friedsam was a Fellow of the Gerontological Society of America and of the Association of Gerontology in Higher Education. At various times in his career he served as President of the Southwestern Sociological Society, the Southwestern Social Science Association, the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education, and the Texas Society on Aging.

A delegate to the 1961, 1971, and 1981 White House Conferences on Aging, he served as co-chair of the Training Section at the 1971 conference and as a consultant to the Technical Committee on Education for the 1981 conference. In 1968, he was appointed by President Lyndon Johnson to serve on his Presidential Task Force on Older Americans.

In 1968, he was appointed by President Lyndon Johnson to serve on his Presidential Task Force on Older Americans. The author or co-author of more than fifty publications, he also served a term as Editor-in-Chief of The Gerontologist, a journal published by the Gerontological Society of America.

Dr. Friedsam's activities in the field of aging also included terms as chairman of the Citizens Advisory Council for the Texas Department on Aging and membership in the Advisory Council of the North Central Texas Council of Governments Area Agency on Aging. In the Denton area, he advised on the origins of several aging services programs and facilities, including the Service Program for Aging Needs (SPAN), the Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP), Denton Good Samaritan Village, and Fairhaven Retirement Home, where he also served as a board member.

Dr. Friedsam received the President's Award and Distinguished Teacher Award from the University of North Texas and was named as an Honorary Alumnus by the UNT Alumni Association. His other awards included a President's Citation from the American Association of Homes and Services for the Aging, the Trailblazer Award from the Texas Joint Conference on Aging, and Distinguished Service Awards from the Southwestern Social Science Association and from the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education. Dr. Friedsam also received the Clark Tibbitts Award for contributions to gerontology education from AGHE.

He is survived by his wife, Reva Sykes Friedsam; his daughter and son-in-law, Karen F. and Tom Duncan, his son and daughter-in-law, S. Carl Friedsam and Charlene; his grandchildren Stephen and Elizabeth Friedsam, his niece, Georgia Hepler (Bert), and his cousin, Sandra Mittica.

Gifts in memory of Dr. Hiram J. Friedsam may be made to Friedsam Graduate Student Professional Development Fund in the Department of Applied Gerontology or the Friedsam Graduate Scholarship in the Department of Sociology. Gifts can also be made to the Friends of UNT Libraries. Make checks payable to the UNT Foundation and mail to the University of North Texas, Division of Advancement, P.O. Box 311250, Denton, TX 76203; or on-line donations may be made at <https://development.unt.edu/givenow/givenow.php>.

Phyllis Eccleston: 30 Years of Service

On April 27, 2007, on the 40th anniversary of its founding, the Department of Applied Gerontology at the University of North Texas honored Phyllis Eccleston for three decades of extraordinary service to students, faculty, and alumni. Her commitment to our department, dedication to her work, and genuine desire to be of help have been evident to all who have sought her assistance and are important elements in the continuing success of programs in aging at UNT.

Coming Soon... 2007 CASP Recertification Due by December 31, 2007

CASP and CASP Fellow credentials exemplify a commitment to excellence in the provision of retirement housing and aging services. By establishing a common foundation of cutting-edge knowledge among aging service professionals, the program raises standards of practice across the nation. The time and energy that you have invested in earning this nationally recognized credential links you and your facility to this exemplary effort.

If you graduated in an odd-numbered year (2005, 2003, 2001, etc.), you should receive a 2007 recertification application in September. Graduates are required to complete a Recertification Application, including a record of 22 hours of continuing education units (CEUs), and submit it with a $145 recertification fee by December 31, 2007. To make the recertification process even easier, we will post the 2007 recertification forms on our website by September 2007.

The 2007 CASP Spring Institute

Regardless of wind, rain, snow, or a nor'easter, the CASP Institute will prevail! In conjunction with Pennsylvania Association for Non-Profit Senior Services (PANPHA) the Coalition for Leadership in Aging Services (CLAS) conducted its CASP Spring Institute in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, April 16-19 and May 15-16 at the beautiful Simpson House. As CASP candidates and faculty traveled against the unusual spring nor'easter, their dedication and commitment to the field of aging were more evident than ever.

On April 16 and 17, candidates were immersed in Core Course I: Administering the Retirement Housing Community. Faculty spoke on topics such as housing management and governance, human resources, marketing, legal issues, and fair housing in aging services. April 18 and 19 brought Core Course II: Management and the Aging Resident. In this course topics included biological, psychological, and social aspects of aging and hospitality and guest services.

With beautiful weather, candidates returned on May 15 and 16 for Core Course III: Managing the Financial and Physical Environments. As candidates reunited with new and old friends, information on the budgeting process, financing the development of a long-term care facility, asset management, and dining management was disseminated.

Not only did candidates enjoy a wonderful classroom experience, but they also had the opportunity to network with one another during the daily lunches, welcome, and networking dinner. On the first night of the Institute, CLAS sponsored a Philly-themed welcome dinner featuring Philadelphia delicacies such as pasta and Philly cheese steak. During Session 2 of the CASP Institute, candidates embarked on a trip to remember, as ARAMARK generously sponsored a tour of their distribution center, hors d'oeuvres, and a Tuscan-themed dinner.

As candidates left the 2007 CASP Spring Institute, they were determined to incorporate new ideas into their facility; maintain contact with new colleagues and friends; and perhaps, go on a diet.....

AAHSA Pre-Conference Session (214-P) Masters-Level Marketing for CCRCs

This pre-convention seminar will explore best practices in developing and implementing strategic marketing plans that target high-priority factors such as assessment, product mix, and objective-driven budgeting, while emphasizing performance criteria, making needed adjustments to remain on course, and gaining organization-wide support. Discover how to develop a marketing plan that will maximize your organization's optimum occupancy:

- Examine key performance indicators of a successful marketing plan and understand the importance of consistent measurement of those indicators.
- Hear key concepts to consider when developing a successful marketing plan, including trends in sales management, lead generation, advertising, public relations, and the Internet.
- Participate in an interactive group exercise to help you apply these concepts and best practices to your community's marketing plan.

Faculty: Meredith Boyle, Senior Vice-President of Marketing, Asbury Group, Gaithersburg, MD; Ken Curnes, Vice-President/Director of Planning and Development, Mary Jane Fitts, Senior Living Specialist, and Jim Glynn, Principal, GlynnDevins Advertising & Marketing, Overland Park, KS; Merna Smith, Vice-President of Marketing Services, Greystone Communities, Irving, TX.

Incorporating Technology into Your Business Plan CASP Fellow Workshop— Educational Session 129-A

A technology plan is becoming an increasingly important part of the aging service business plan. Technology plays critical roles in supporting workforce collaboration, measuring quality, operational, and financial results; simplifying business and clinical processes, supporting new services and amenities for residents; and creating new business models. This session will exam how to develop technology plans that support and accelerate your organization's business strategy, identify best opportunities for technology impact, and leverage technology disciplines to support your culture change and quality improvement initiatives.

- Consider how to align technology with business and strategic planning to support infrastructure, quality improvement, and service models.
- In particular, explore how technology initiatives can support and accelerate "culture change" programs.
- Evaluate how "pilot" and "demonstration" initiatives can help organizations integrate technology into their strategic thinking.
