

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH TEXAS™

Scholarship Opportunities

Master's Degree Program in Special Education with Emphasis on Secondary Transition Services to Adolescents with or At-Risk for Emotional/Behavioral Disorders and Challenging Behaviors

For more information on the program contact:

Dr. Lyndal M. Bullock
Regents Professor, Special Education
University of North Texas
1155 Union Circle #311335
Denton, Texas 76203-5017
lyndal.bullock@unt.edu

OR

Jeanie McMahan
Administrative Coordinator II
University of North Texas
1155 Union Circle #311335
Denton, Texas 76203-5017
Matthews Hall 119D
940-565-3583
jeanie.mcmahan@unt.edu

Full-Time or Part-Time Scholars for Fall 2012

The University of North Texas' Program in Special Education is recruiting scholars to become part of its Master's program with a focus on Secondary Transition Services to Adolescents with or At-Risk for Emotional/Behavioral Disorders and Challenging Behaviors designed to increase adolescents' academic outcomes and options for post-secondary success.

The program offers admission to its master's program beginning in fall 2012. Full-time scholars typically enroll for 12-semester credit hours each academic term and summer and spend 22.5 hours weekly with adolescents in assigned field placements. Part-time scholars enroll for 6-semester credit hours each academic term and 12-semester credit hours during the summer.

Full-time scholars receive a monthly stipend and a scholarship to cover in-state tuition and course fees (which combined translates to an annual amount of approximately $19,200.) Part-time scholars receive a partial scholarship in the amount of $1,000 toward tuition and course fees when they take 6-semester credit hours per term.

Admission Requirements. Admission to the master's program in special education takes into consideration several factors deemed important for success in graduate studies. No single factor determines an individual's eligibility for admission.

► Meet all admission requirements for the Toulouse School of Graduate Studies. Apply at www.applytexas.org.

► Admission to the Department is contingent on the scholar's submission and review by the Departmental Admission's Committee of a completed application packet which includes GRE scores (verbal, quantitative, analytical writing), (b) 2 letters of recommendation on letterhead and signed indicating the applicant's reading, writing, mathematical, and critical thinking skills in order to successfully engage in graduate studies; (c) resume' that includes your previous career and/or educational experiences, and (d) a personal statement (1-3 pages) in which you indicate your personal goals/objectives for applying to the degree program. For example, if you have experience with special populations, summarize these experiences and explain how they are linked to your educational aspirations.

► Scholars must agree to the requirements that upon program completion they will pursue positions in the specialization area of their master's degree.